UNIVERSITY OF LINCOLN JOB DESCRIPTION

JOB TITLE	Associate Professor in Health and Care Research Capacity Development
ACADEMIC PROFILE	Teaching and Research
DEPARTMENT	School Health & Care Sciences
LOCATION	Lincoln Campuses
JOB NUMBER	CHS348	GRADE	9	DATE	July 2026
REPORTS TO	Head of School

CONTEXT

Associate Professors with an academic profile of Teaching and Research at the University of Lincoln are recognised among their peers as research leaders who have achieved a high standard of scholarship and have a substantial record of ongoing research of international quality. Associate Professors are expected to have an appropriate balance of research and teaching within their portfolio and to evidence potential to progress to a professorial appointment.

Associate Professors are also recognised as leaders in teaching strategy, curriculum development and research-led teaching practice within their discipline or area of expertise.

This post will contribute to the School of Health and Care Sciences' strategic priorities by supporting the development of research capacity across the School. The post-holder will act as a role model and enabler for academic staff seeking to develop their research confidence, capability and activity. They will have experience of delivering research-related teaching to undergraduate and postgraduate health and care students, and of facilitating opportunities for students and staff to engage with research.

JOB PURPOSE

The post-holder will provide academic leadership for research capacity development across the School of Health and Care Sciences, supporting staff to become more research active and enabling greater integration and effective use of staff expertise.

The post-holder will lead and provide oversight of shared research teaching across the School, working with programme teams to support coherence, quality and curriculum innovation in research-related teaching and learning.

The post-holder will have extensive experience of research in a profession, health or care area represented within the School. They will generate high-quality personal research outcomes and outputs, provide leadership in the development of research initiatives, and contribute to research-related teaching through delivery, curriculum development and academic leadership.

As an Associate Professor, the post-holder will contribute to the development and management of the School, with involvement in College activities, and provide leadership in research capacity development, research teaching and the advancement of the School's research ambitions.

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES

Research

An Associate Professor (T&R) enhances and promotes the research culture in the subject area and contributes to the strategic development of research in their School or College, including by:

- Demonstrating a strong international profile within their discipline (e.g. producing international conference papers and invitations as keynote speakers)
- Conducting research of an international standard
- Publishing (or equivalent) research outputs of internationally excellent quality.
- Have sufficient outputs to be returned in the REF at a high standard inclusive of complex circumstances.
- Developing externally funded research projects and acting as PI on medium-sized research grants.
- Working (possibly with others) on the writing of bids to external funding sources.
- Contributing to research impact by participating in relevant research groups/committees, leading or contributing to impact case studies and engaging with activities that contribute towards the cultivation of an environment of impact
- Linking their research profile to education and the professional sector as appropriate
- Developing links with relevant local, national and international organisations with a view to enhancing research in cognate fields
- Contributing to research development events and coaching and mentoring colleagues in the development of their research profiles

Teaching and Learning Support

Undertaking teaching at undergraduate and/or postgraduate levels and carrying out all related activities, achieving good sustained levels of student progression and feedback. The range of teaching duties may change from time to time

Facilitate, develop, lead and support innovations in the teaching activities and curriculum development and delivery of the School and wider University

Support the design and development of new or existing programmes, advising on ways to enhance the quality of engagement and influence of discipline specific professionals and enrich the student experience with a focus on employability through practitioner or employer led engagement

Work with others to develop College policy that influences and promotes effective research in all aspects of the student learning experience

Develop, implement and manage a community of practice to support staff new to teaching within the school to engage in research

If appropriate, lead a subject area or range of programmes and resolve problems affecting the quality of course delivery and student progress within own areas of responsibility

Liaison and Networking

Work within an extended network or community suitable to their discipline, which can impact positively on the work of the University

Take a lead role in the application of these networks to enacting the University mission and strategy

Promote the reputation of the University within the wider higher education community through publications, contributions to conferences and liaison within the relevant subject centre

Liaise with and develop internal networks, for example by chairing and participating in institutional committees

Lead, develop and contribute to relevant external networks, professional, national or international bodies such as Higher Education Committees and high level advisory groups

Monitor external funding opportunities and assist the College and the University in securing external funding

Interact and collaborate with other internal Schools and Colleges and external institutions and bodies on the establishment of joint projects to enhance the quality of research, teaching and learning

Team Working

Work as a member of the School management team to contribute to the development and management of the School

Provide academic leadership within the School over a subject area, a range of courses or programmes and an area of research or significant academic endeavor.

Contribute significantly to the development and running of the School by taking on appropriate coordinating or leadership roles.

Supervise or line manage other staff as appropriate.

Act as mentor or appraiser to designated colleagues, advising on personal development and ensuring that they are meeting the standards required
